THE RELEASE

FAA MAGAZINE

BY ALVARO UBEDA

FROM THE EDITOR

I want to thank the FAA for the honor and opportunity to serve as the new editor of the Association's magazine, FAA Release.

My beginnings in Archery were in 2011 at the Miami Springs club. I was taught by Mark Bain, a great person whom I remember as a mentor and who motivated me to continue and achieve new goals in the sport.

I am currently Director of the Li'l Abner Foundation Archery Program, USA Archery Level 3NTS Certified Coach/Trainer, and Level 1 Certified Judge.

I look forward to contributing by serving in this position to the growth and development of the Florida Archery Association, with the support of the members and other officers.

BY OLIVER AUSTIN

FAA SEC/TREAS

Greetings,

Congratulations to our shooting of the Year Winners: Dominic Tolentino, Joe Heist, and in the closest contest ever, Joyce Haniman by one point over Edna Loyd.

All our State Shoots are single site shoots with the exception of the State Indoor, which has a north and a south site (Ft. LAUDERDALE and Easton Newberry).

We have removed the Unmarked 3D, and are going to have three one day marked 3D tournaments for money.

Lee County, Central - Central Florida and North - Gator). The South 3-D is being shot on Sunday January 29. Lee County is hosting the Lee County Senior Games on Saturday January 28, come down a day early and shoot it.

We had no one wanting to run for office other than the incumbents. David Ireland and Dale East will continue in their roles. Unfortunately, Robert Regojo resigned as US Archery Representative. We are looking for someone to replace him. We are still looking for a new logo for the Florida Archery Association. In this Release you will see one of the designs, let us know what you think.

The National Senior Games will be in Pittsburgh in July 2023. I will be Director of Shooting. Hope to see you there. See you in the range.

ALL ABOUT

INDOOR ARCHERY SEASON

archery360.com. Taylor Walston

Fall is a time of transition. The weather changes from hot to cold, the foliage turns from green to orange, and outdoor archery season gives way to indoor archery season. But what exactly is the difference between outdoor archery and indoor archery? We asked Olympic archer Crispin Duenas to break down the difference between the two seasons and offer some advice on the best way to prepare.

A360: What would you say is the biggest difference between indoor and outdoor archery?

CD: The biggest differences between indoor and outdoor archery is the distance and the effect of the weather/elements.

For target archery, outdoor is shot at 50 meters for the compound and barebow division, and 70 meters for the recurve division. Different age groups in each division can also see a change in their required distance. Indoors is shot at 18 meters for both divisions regardless of age or equipment.

ALL ABOUT

INDOOR ARCHERY SEASON

With the effects of the outdoor elements, archers have to make quick calculations or adjustments to counteract those effects — for example, a crosswind — in order to make their arrow hit the ten-ring. Indoor archery doesn't have the elements and because of this many archers believe that indoor archery is a true display of the archer's mental control.

A360: What should archers know about choosing indoor arrows?

CD: There is a lot of temptation to switch to big-diameter arrows in order to catch the higher scoring ring, but most of the time smaller outdoor arrows can actually prove to score better than their bigger counterparts. Choose the arrows that work best for you.

A360: What else should they know about indoor equipment?

CD: An archer's indoor equipment can differ from their outdoor setup because they don't have to counteract the wind and outdoor elements while shooting. The things that could differ as compared to an outdoor setup are: stabilizer balance and length, arrow size, sight aperture, bow poundage, peep size for compounds, fletching type/size, grip angle, and choice of footwear.

A360: How does the Vegas Shoot differ from other indoor tournaments?

CD: The Vegas Shoot differs from other indoor tournaments because unlike World Archery rules, compound archers score with the "big ten" ring instead of the "inner ten." The big ten is just slightly bigger than a quarter whereas the inner ten is about the size of a dime. Each competition day in Vegas includes a 30-arrow scoring round instead of a 60-arrow round. In the compound and recurve categories, there are a lot less equipment restrictions, so more people shoot with arrow diameters that would be illegal for a World Archery sanctioned competition.

ALL ABOUT

INDOOR ARCHERY SEASON

A360: What advice do you have for archers that are looking to transition from outdoor archery to indoor archery?

CD: First, try your outdoor equipment indoors to see if this setup works for you — this will be the easiest transition to indoors for you instead of having to change bits and pieces of your setup to try to find what works.

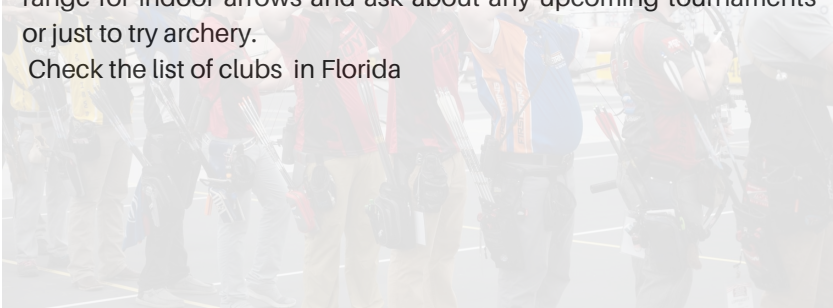

The mental game of indoors is completely different for some archers as compared to outdoors. The majority of archers have a thought of “just hit the target” outdoors, but that changes to “don’t miss the middle” for indoors. Try to change this way of thinking and focus on your goal of executing consistent shots, which will inevitably score better for you.

Also get comfortable shooting with people closer to you on the shooting line, and make sure your equipment doesn’t cross into someone else’s space on the shooting line. There’s usually limited room in indoor archery and at a competition like Vegas, there’s less than 3 feet of space allotted for each archer on the line.

Next Steps

The distance to the target in indoor archery is shorter than in outdoor archery, so archers should be prepared to adjust to the shorter distance. This means adjusting their arrows as well as their mentality. Competing in this new discipline will equip you with more experience and will allow you to practice archery all year. If you’re ready to take on a new challenge with indoor archery, visit your local range for indoor arrows and ask about any upcoming tournaments or just to try archery.

NFAA NATIONAL INDOOR LEAGUE 2023

LEAGUE DATES: JAN 1 - MAR 26

Join the 2023 National Indoor League!

The League runs for 12 weeks at NFAA ranges across the world, offering members the opportunity to compete at an international level from their home range. Archers shoot Vegas rounds for the first 6-week session and NFAA 300 rounds (blue/white face) for the second 6-week session. Scores and scorecards are uploaded by the archer via an online form prior to the end of each session. The archer's top 4 scores from each session are counted toward their National Indoor League final placement.

IMPORTANT: League scores do NOT have to be shot at a host location. If there is no host in their area, archers can also participate at any 20-yard indoor range around the world. Host locations with a current NFAA club charter or shop license and current NFAA Indoor Range Certification are eligible for rebates.

All participants are entered to win entries into the 2023 National Indoor Championships and other prizes!
